Politics & Legislation

by John Faro, Political Junkie

The following is an excerpt of an article by Kris Jolin, Director of Federal Legislation for GOA.

On the last full day in office as President of the United States, Barack Obama's Director of the US Fish and Wildlife Service, Dan Ashe, handed down Order No. 219, effectively banning lead ammunition from most government controlled lands.

Order No. 219's goal was to expand requirements for use of non-toxic ammunition beyond already existing state, federal, and tribal requirements "to the fullest extent practicable," making roughly 95% of ammunition (and all lead fishing tackle) in the United States unusable in those places.

The former Obama Administration tried to spin the lead ammo ban as an environmental issue to the public, but it was clear this restriction on ammunition was his last-ditch attempt enact gun control during his presidency.

Some studies even concluded that the economic impact of the lead ammo ban to Americans, especially those living in rural areas, was estimated to run into hundreds of million dollars.

Newly sworn-in Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke (Trump Administration) signed an order overturning the lead ammo ban on his first day in office. This did not get much attention in the media so I thought it was worth publishing it here.

(Thanks to Kris Jolin of Gun Owners of America for the info.)

VETERANS GUN BAN REPEAL

by Michael Hammond Esq.
(Gun Owners of America)

The bipartisan bill to repeal the Veteran's Gun Ban passed the House by a lop-sided margin in March, and is now on the Senate calendar.

That bill is HR 1181 – a bill which is sorely needed. As a result of bureaucratic overreach, over 257,000 law-abiding veterans have been stripped of their constitutional right to keep and bear arms. This has been done by faceless bureaucrats, without any due process whatsoever.

Take into consideration that the armed services had no problem issuing our American heroes M4's or M16's and sending them into firefights in Iraq and Afghanistan. But the second they set foot on American soil, these brave men and women are stripped of their constitutional rights with no due process – merely because they sought counseling for traumatic experience while risking their lives to defend our country.

And although there is a theoretical right of appeal, the $10,000 + cost of lawyers and experts is invariably more than any veteran can afford. If it's any indication of what a travesty this process is, there are 107,000 heroic veterans over 80-years-old who have had their rights taken away, simply because they're too old to balance their checkbooks.

It is time for this travesty to come to an end, and HR 1181 would accomplish that. By our count (GOA), we have at least 59 votes to pass this measure in the Senate and send it to Donald Trump's desk.

We need to make sure the "good guys" in the Senate hold firm – and that we can pick up just one more Senator to break a potential filibuster.

(Many thanks to Mr. Hammond for this update.)
