Politics & Legislation

by John Faro, Political Junkie

The start of the “Silly Season” (the election cycle) has begun. I’m going to step away from 2nd Amendment issues for this report and delve into overall election concerns.

The following are excerpts from a speech given by Edward J. Erler, Professor Emeritus of political science at California State University, San Bernardino, reprinted here with permission from Imprimis, a publication of Hillsdale College.

President Trump’s zero-tolerance policy for illegal border crossers has provoked a hysterical reaction from Democrats, establishment Republicans, the progressive-liberal media, Hollywood radicals and the deep state. What particularly motivated the ire of these Trump-haters was the fact that zero-tolerance policy would require the separation of parents and children at the border. The hysteria was, of course, completely insincere and fabricated, given that the policy of separating children and parents was nothing new – it had been a policy of the Obama and Bush administrations as well.

We are asked to believe something incredible: that the American character is defined only by its unlimited acceptance of diversity. A defined American character – devotion to Republican principles, republican virtue, the habits and manners of free citizens, self-reliance – would in that case be impermissibly exclusive.

The Immigration and Naturalization Act “grants the President broad discretion to suspend the entry of aliens into the United States. The President lawfully exercised that discretion based on his findings ... that entry of the covered aliens would be detrimental to the national interests.” Few limits have ever been placed on the President’s broad authority to act under the Immigration and Naturalization Act, especially when national security and foreign relations are involved.

Any clear-thinking observer can see that compassion is not a sound basis for either foreign policy or immigration policy. Compassion is more likely to lead to contempt than gratitude in both areas.

The American people can, of course, consent to allow others to join the compact that created the American nation, but they have the sovereign right to specify the terms and conditions for granting entry and the qualifications for citizenship.

My thoughts:

What does all this mean to us during the mid-term elections? It means if you don’t exercise your right to vote and select the candidates who believe in the Constitution of the United States of America as the law of the land, you may not, in the not too distant future, have the right to vote for the candidate of your choice.

There are many ILLEGAL aliens and dead people voting in our elections already. Your vote is the only way to nullify the voter fraud deeply entrenched in our country. If the American people want President Trump to drain the “Washington Swamp”, get out and do your part to elect people who are willing to help in this worthwhile endeavor. VOTE in the primaries and the coming election.
